

MR. McCORMICK BEFORE JURY

President of Utah National Bank Gives Testimony in Regard to Robbery.

WILL BE SUMMONED AGAIN

OTHER OFFICIALS APPEAR TO ANSWER INQUIRIES.

W. S. McCormick, president of the Utah National bank, was a witness before the grand jury yesterday afternoon. The Utah National bank was the bank which was robbed of $106,250 on Jan. 2, a robbery which has proved an unsolved mystery in spite of all the detectives, private and otherwise, that have been at work on the case.

Mr. McCormick was the last witness of the day yesterday. He was called at about 4 o'clock and was with the grand jury until its adjournment. It is likely that he will be called again.

Joseph Nelson was also called, but his testimony apparently was not concluded. James Chipman and O. P. Miller were among those examined. Charles W. Nibley and T. R. Cutler, respectively a former and a present director of the bank, were also called. So was J. E. Dooley. Of these witnesses Messrs. Chipman, O. P. Miller and another, J. W. Fitzgerald, were excused and paid off. The others are subject to call.

Arrangements have been made for the summoning in quick time of the witnesses who reported yesterday—there were many inasmuch as they were requested to leave their telephone numbers with the bailiff. The witnesses generally are permitted to leave the federal building and attend to their affairs, so long as they can be reached by telephone. It is not the purpose of the district attorney to work a hardship on the witnesses by compelling them to remain in constant attendance, when their own business is suffering for lack of their presence.

It is the talk about the federal building that the investigation ought to be concluded by Saturday. Although there is no telling what may transpire and how many other witnesses may be summoned.

ORGANIZATION PERFECTED.

Cache County Board of Education Assumes Control of the Public Schools.

Logan, April 22.—The Cache county board of education, which was appointed after the schools of the county had been consolidated, completed its organization yesterday and assumed control of the schools. Edwin Miles of Smithfield was appointed clerk of the board and his salary was fixed at $600 a month. John M. Anderson of Lewiston was named as treasurer and his compensation was placed at $100 per year. It was decided to divide the school funds of the county among the county banks, one-fourth to each bank. The banks furnish the $20,000 bond of the treasurer and agree to pay 2 1/2 per cent interest on balances, and will charge 7 per cent on overdrafts. The following standing committee were named by President Samuel Oldham: Finance—C. Z. Harris, P. M. Maughan, Stephen Thurstun. Teachers and Janitors—Oldham, Maughan and Superintendent McCarrey. Text-books and Supplies—Harris, Thurstun. Fuel and Transportation—Maughan and M. W. Butler. Buildings, Repairs, etc.—Harris, Oldham. Discipline and Attendance—Thurstun, Butler. Auditing—Harris, Maughan and Superintendent McCarrey.

The Logan Journal has purchased a new home, the Murdoch block, or Palace Hotel building, as it is called, on Center street, and will move into it in about two months. The building is a three-story structure and it is said the purchase price was in the neighborhood of $20,000. The former owner, J. R. Edwards, is disposing of his interests here preparatory to moving to Fresno, Cal.

PROVO NEWS NOTES.

Provo, April 22.—Moroni Smith and others have commenced suit against Edward F. Wadley to enjoin him from interfering with plaintiffs in driving their sheep over a trail on land which defendant claims to own. The land is in sections 25 and 36, township 5 south, range 2 east, Salt Lake meridian, and plaintiffs allege that the trail has been used by them and others for twenty-five years in driving their sheep over the same range in western Utah to their summer range in eastern Utah.

ROOSEVELT THREATENS TO USE VETO

Since the bill was reported, he said, the estimates, amounting to $7,000,000, had been received, and he would add that amount as an amendment to the bill, thus increasing to that extent the already heavy appropriations for the navy.

"I say this," added Mr. Hale, "in order that senators and newspaper men and others may possess their souls in peace."

Life of a Warship.

Answering an inquiry by Mr. Clay, Senator Hale said it was necessary to begin to repair the vessels almost as soon as they are set adrift. When repairs reach the original cost, he added, "it is discovered a vessel is obsolete."

Mr. Hale said he had recently talked with Sir William White, formerly head of the British admiralty, who has stated that the United States has the finest fleet in the world, and that the efficiency of our navy is due to the fact that we waited to build ships, while Great Britain spent hundreds of millions of dollars upon ships that have become obsolete.

"The ships you have are the best of their kind," he told me," said Mr. Hale. "But you will find just as we have found, expense of a great navy only begins when you have built the ships."

Criticized by Warren.

Mr. Warren criticized the naval bill so far as it provides for an increase in the navy and the marine corps, saying that when the increase for the army was proposed it was placed in a separate bill and brought into the senate early in the session so that full discussion on it could be had. He referred to the recent remarks of Senator Hale in the senate, in which the senator from Maine commented on the newspaper article stating that the policy of the secretary of war has been to increase the regular army to 125,000 men. Mr. Warren said there seemed to be a feeling of resentment toward every proposition to enlarge the army, and since the speech of the senator from Maine there had been widespread comment on the extravagance of appropriations for that branch of the service. Now, he said, the navy bill before the senate with provisions for an increase in the enlisted force, which it was proposed to pass in a minute.

Reason for Extravagance.

"That is because we keep adding ships," suggested Mr. Hale. "The navy bill enlarged because we keep adding countries," retorted Mr. Warren.

"We have not added any lately, thank God," replied the senator from Maine.

Mr. Hale added that he did not have any so much in mind as he had the navy when he spoke against an increased military establishment. He said he was then preparing to oppose four new battleships, and so far as that goal is accomplished his object," he added.

Mr. Warren had read at the desk a statement by Secretary Taft disclaiming that he was authority for the newspaper statement that he had a plan for a standing army of 125,000, and a letter from General Bell, chief of staff, declaring that he "never heard of such a thing and never thought of doubling the army."

Foraker Takes a Hand.

Mr. Foraker interposed to have the speech of Secretary Taft delivered at Columbus, O. April 2, 1908, concerning enlargement of the army printed in the record and a part of it read from the vice president's desk.

Senator Warren, with some feeling, said it looked to him that in order to get four, eight or ten battleships for the navy, the water must be blackened around the army, and public attention turned from it. He said when another bill is brought in it should be concerned with the navy, and he did not think the naval appropriation bill was the proper place in which to provide for a regiment of men. So far as he was concerned, he was not to have an addition to the signal corps of the army, as that was greatly needed, but that would be comparatively a small matter.

Mr. Foraker, commenting on the Columbus speech of Secretary Taft, said that speech indicated that the idea of the secretary was to have legislation to enable the country in the next ten years, through the reserve forces as well as the regular army, to have 250,000 men under arms. Before taking up the sections relating to battleships, the bill was laid aside until tomorrow.

Pennsylvania Railroad Company Markets Big Bond Issue in London.

New York, April 22.—Kuhn, Loeb & Co. announced today that that firm and the Rothschilds of London have concluded negotiations to take an issue of $40,000,000 of forty-year 4 per cent bonds of the Pennsylvania railroad. The issue is made under an authorization of $100,000,000 of bonds made in 1873, of which approximately $12,500,000 is outstanding. The bonds are secured by what is practically a prior lien, except for about $20,000,000 on the main line of the company between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

The issue price is understood to be 98.

The bonds will be taken by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of New York and N. M. Rothschild & Sons and Baring Brothers & Co. of London. The bonds will be issued simultaneously in New York and London. In addition to the lien on the main line between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh the mortgage security also covers the terminals in those cities, various branch lines and the lease of the United New Jersey Railroad & Canal company between Philadelphia and Jersey City.

Purpose of the Bonds.

Philadelphia, April 22.—The Pennsylvania Railroad company's statement announcing the bond issue given out late this afternoon says:

"The proceeds thereof will be used to meet the expenditures upon the New York tunnel extension and its terminal station in the center of New York City and for the completion of other construction work and facilities already under way and necessary to economically handle the traffic."

YOUNG LADIES ENTERTAIN

Leap Year Ball of J. B. W. R. Club Is a Delightful Affair.

The J. B. W. R. club gave a delightful leap year ball at the Odeon hall last evening, which was attended by over 200 guests. Governor and Mrs. Cutler and the governor's staff were among the guests. The young ladies who escorted the gentlemen to the ball took the opportunity of showing their grace and beauty in the most becoming manner. Each lady was more than attentive to the gentleman whom she took to the dance, and it was to be expected that the ball was a success. Several novel dances were introduced by the young ladies, and the music furnished by the orchestra. The ball was a success in every respect. The Odeon hall was opened for the first time in the season, and was visited by many of the dancers.

There was a profusion of flowers used in the decoration of the hall, which, with the radiance of the brilliantly illuminated hall, made a very pretty effect. Spring blossoms veiled the winding stair leading to the roof.

Storm Spoiled Sport.

Today's storm put an end to many entertainments afloat as well as on shore. A stiff breeze from the southwest piled up a heavy sea at the beach, where three of the four divisions are anchored, and made boating too dangerous to be attempted during a greater part of the forenoon and until well along toward evening. The first of the ship launches sent away to the shore in the early morning made safe enough journeys, but they danced about in a fashion too lively for inexperienced navigators, and orders were sent out that no visiting parties would be allowed on board any of the ships at Long Beach, Redondo and Santa Monica. The ships of the first division, the Connecticut, Kansas, Vermont and Louisiana, anchored in the lee of the long piers, and the ship of the second division, the Albatross, did not feel the effects of the blow and the rough water outside. They were open to visitors throughout the day, and several hundred persons traveled the weather and the wet launches to get a glimpse of the big vessels.

School Children Visit Ships.

During the morning the Connecticut was open to school children, and big parties of eager-eyed girls and boys were guided to all the points of interest. At one time there were 300 of the children on board. They gathered on the forward deck and accompanied by the ship's band, sang "America." The sailors gave them three cheers when they were taken off on an excursion steamer.

The large flotillas of pleasure launches at the various beaches made rough weather of the blow, one going ashore at Venice and several others having narrow escapes from disasters. Distress signals were going on at a lively rate during the day, and the ships anchored in the open water put out extra anchors during the afternoon. No damage of any sort was done, however. It was felt that the greatest gallantry upon himself, tried to get the ship out of the water by transferring them from the shore launches to the small platforms of the ships' gangways, and it was decided to take no chances.

Then again there is not a real high school in our building as the county, as the one now being used here, for that purpose is also being partly used for the grades, and as the high school would have to be located in a central city and as Park City is on the extreme southern edge of the county, it is not expected that this great building would be erected here, where the majority of the pupils of Summit have their homes.

State Superintendent Nelson stated at the meeting held here last week that the Park City high ranked third in the state, and this being the case, the citizens are very much opposed to losing it now.

REAR ADMIRAL LEADS THE MARCH

Brilliant Ball at Los Angeles in Honor of Visiting Officers.

HAPPY JACK TARS ASHORE

SCHOOL CHILDREN SWARM OVER THE BATTLESHIPS.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 22.—A ball rivaling in its wealth and brilliant effects an inaugural function at Washington, tonight brought to a close the fifth day of the stay of the American battleship fleet at the ports of Los Angeles. The dance was given in the immense Shriners' auditorium in honor of the admirals and officers of the fleet, and it is estimated that more than 1,200 couples took part in the grand march, which was led by Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas and Mrs. Anna R. Chaffee, wife of General Chaffee, chairman of the officers' entertainment committee. The officers all were attired in full evening dress uniform and the glitter of gold lace mingled everywhere with the blended colors of the splendid gowns worn by the ladies. The program of dancing was a long one, beginning promptly at 9:30 o'clock, and calling for carriages at 3 a. m. Suppers were served at 11:30 p. m. and at 1 a. m. in a dining room which was decorated in a fashion almost as elaborate as the auditorium itself.

Final Public Function.

The ball was the last big public function of the fleet's stay, and it took rank with the admiral's banquet of last Monday evening as a notable event in the society of the city. It brought to an exceptionally happy conclusion a day of leaden skies and heavy showers which caused a postponement of most of the outdoor celebrations, including the boxing bouts, the barbecues and wild west shows which have constituted the most generous and lavish entertainments ever planned anywhere in honor of the enlisted men of the United States navy.

Sailors Ashore Early.

More than 3,000 blue jackets and marines came ashore in the early morning, and while disappointed that the principal features of the day had to be abandoned, turned to and had a good time, despite the rain. They reeled their flapping trousers-legs and blouses, made snug their flat-topped caps and went gallivanting through the city on horseback in large numbers. Others, with faces wreathed in smiles, were whirled about in automobiles to their very evident delight, and still others were entertained at indoor luncheons, matinees and theatre parties in the evening. Three-fourths of the fleet entertainment fund raised in this city has been spent on the enlisted men. They have shown their appreciation of the attention devoted to them by making a record of conduct which reflects a standard of the present enlisted force of the naval establishment.

Officers and Men of the Fleet.

The remembrances of Los Angeles and San Diego, together with the submitted programs from points to the north, serve as an indication of what their entire stay on the coast will be. Rear Admiral Sperry, in commenting on the subject today, said:

"It is a revelation to me to find such a generous welcome, such continuous hospitality as has been shown to us. It is the first time in the history of the navy that the men seem to lack absolutely nothing to make their time ashore both pleasant and profitable. In all my experience I have never seen a place where the men ashore on liberty never lay along the waterfront for lack of a welcome elsewhere. The strength of the navy rests on the respect and confidence of the people, and the best men of the nation will not serve unless their uniform is respected. This is the first time in my experience that the men have met with universal consideration and respect."

Tonight's ball was the occasion of the greatest social gathering the city has ever known. Ten thousand incandescent bulbs of red, white and blue, and a lavish use of flags and patriotic bunting transformed the bare walls and ceiling of the big auditorium into a mass of waving colors. Long streamers of red and white bunting formed a canopy over the heads of the dancers, the centerpiece of the ceiling decorations being a huge union jack, showing forty-six white electric stars on its field of blue. The edge of the jack was outlined in blue electric bulbs. Ropes of asparagus were looped in graceful festoons below the bunting. Balcies were lined with flags and lights, and two immense flags, made especially for the occasion, formed a portiere effect in front of the stage where a marine band was stationed. A rear admiral's flag of blue with two white stars, also formed a part of the stage decorations. Several thousand clusters of sweet peas and 20,000 carnations were used in the decoration of the supper rooms.
